lyrics here seem to be a bit too far from the staff...

run run run run run run run run run run run run run run run run ...especially compared to this example. Notice that the actual distance between staffsymbol and lyricText is identical in both cases:

increasing padding and decreasing basic-distance is a bad idea because it will break this case:

run run run run run run run run run run run run run run run run run

Lyrics are already quite far from the staff here because of a quarter b note; they shouldn't be lowered more.

