

Either on the last line of the article,
or — if that line is too long to accommodate the end mark — on the following line.

— The author

Either on the last line of the article,
or — if that line is too long to accommodate the end mark — on the following line.

— The author

Either on the last line of the article,
or — if that line is too long to accommodate the end mark — on the following line.

— The author with a very long name

So in any case the end mark should be flush right. Either on the last line of the article, or — if that line is too long to accommodate the end mark — on the following line.

— The author

So in any case the end mark should be flush right. Either on the last line of the article, or — if that line is too long to accommodate the end mark — on the following line.

— The author